Analyst - Vancouver, B.C.

InterVISTAS Consulting seeks to add a key member to our team in the Vancouver office that will primarily focus on tourism-related projects and services. The candidate will undertake general project research, primary visitor and general survey data analysis, data development, report writing, and presentation production in a wide variety of product areas. The nature of the work will generally focus on the industries of tourism and aviation.

Qualifications

We are seeking applicants with an undergraduate level university degree in either business/commerce, tourism, economics, or statistics.

The selected candidate must have a strong set of skills in quantitative research and able to both conduct thorough analysis and provide sound interpretations of the results. The Candidate must be able to multi-task, work within a team, work under pressure and deliver accurate results on time and on budget. The Candidate should be motivated by a challenge, committed to achieving goals, and be an analytical and innovative problem-solver. Strong writing skills are your alter ego and you are capable of converting data, empirical results and models into compelling, well-crafted reports for our clients. You are attentive to detail, committed to producing accurate results, and have a strong work ethic.

Key Qualifications:

- An undergraduate level university degree in either business/commerce, tourism, economics, or statistics who demonstrate a strong interest in tourism and aviation.
- 1 - 2 years of work experience in a professional setting is desired. New graduates may be considered, with demonstrated experience obtained through internships or work co-op terms.
- Strong writing skills are a must have requirement and cannot be waived. You are a clear and concise writer. Your writing ability covers both the ability to document technical research and to provide clear prose motivating and describing research results. The ability to provide intuition to complex research is a plus.
- Advanced competency with Microsoft Excel, PowerPoint, and Word is a must have requirement for this position. Some experience in a programming environment (e.g. R, SQL, Python) or data visualization (e.g. Tableau, PowerBI) would be an asset.
- You are familiar with and excited by current issues and trends in the world and particularly in the tourism, aviation, and transportation industries and can demonstrate a consistent commitment to knowledge building.

Specific duties will include:

- Developing detailed knowledge of the tourism, aviation, transportation and other industries. Our research and analysis approach is not confined to numerical analysis, but rather includes developing deep understanding of the trends affecting our clients' industries and the public interest.
- Developing models to help make projects more efficient as well as translating data into strategic insight.
- Analyzing stakeholder input and developing key recommendations for clients.
- Qualitative analysis of open-ended comments and recognizing common themes.
- Building knowledge of alternative sources of data and developing databases for analysis.
- Supporting the preparation of proposals for clients by researching relevant information and assisting in proposal writing.
- Developing marketing presentations and materials.
